It's no secret that Catholics oppose abortion. While people of goodwill can disagree on the best means to end abortion and what role public policy plays, we Catholics are a “people of life” who believe that all human life is of equal worth and dignity, deserving of protection from conception until death.

And yet, our quest to make abortion unthinkable has become increasingly elusive, especially here in Vermont, where abortions are legal without restrictions throughout all 9 months of pregnancy. Recently, the State’s largest hospital joined Planned Parenthood in providing elective abortions. An infant born at 23 weeks gestation will be resuscitated and sent to the neonatal ICU, while in an operating room in the same hospital, one that is 22 weeks, 6 days, can be aborted.

While this is legal, it is not right. One might ask what has happened in the 45 years since Roe v Wade that such a “new normal” is even possible. We were promised, “Safe, legal and rare” and now we are living in a culture where abortion is increasingly described as, “Just another medical procedure.”

What has happened?

It has been said that all it takes for evil to triumph is for good people to say nothing. And yet when it comes to talking about abortion, we often squirm. This must change if we are to reverse the cultural mindset. We can learn to talk about abortion with charity and compassion, reflecting that we are pro all-life, not just against abortion. But we also must be firmly anti-abortion, because it is wrong.

Not everyone is suited to pro-life activism, but that doesn’t mean there aren’t ways everyone can help restore the culture of life. This Lent, why not make a goal of stepping outside your comfort zone and adding some positive, pro-life energy to your world in some small way?

Here are some ideas to get started:

1. Post a pro-life meme or article on social media.
2. Follow the “Respect Life: Roman Catholic Diocese of Burlington” Facebook page and invite at least one other person to do so.
3. Give up something extra for Lent for a pro-life intention.
4. Learn the facts. Science supports what Catholic moral teaching affirms: life begins at conception. Data about abortion can be eye opening. Many people aren’t aware that help and alternatives exist for women with unexpected pregnancies. There are many links available on the Diocesan website’s respect life page with talking points and information.
5. Share the facts. The next time the topic arises, don’t remain silent. With charity, help correct the myths and errors. Don’t be afraid to say, “I’m pro-life.”
6. Donate to a pro-life organization or a pregnancy-care center.
7. Join a prayer group like 9 Days for Life or start a pro-life novena with your friends.

Use your imagination; together, we can make a difference!
